

The four wye sections form a four-point star shape at the top, now the base, of an inverted tree

Two motorized units can bounce between two of the four points. With a proper type of train and switch control device, you can also have a single unit bounce between all four points